Page 2 Page 3 Page 4 Page 5 Adventure Summary: In this level-12 fifth edition D&D adventure, the storm giant Van'Th'ir the Tempest has beset the village of Cloudspire Vale with a never ending winter storm in retribution for the villagers hunting his prized giant goats. Now, Bjorn Thunderbeard, a priest in the village, is seeking an adventuring group who can climb Stormcatcher Peak where the storm giant dwells and put an end to Van'Th'ir's threat. The adventure is detailed below, but to download the printable PDF including the map, sign up for my newsletter. Crestures Giant goat eAAA CR 1/2 Werewolf eAAA CR 4 Oni eAAA CR 7 Roc eAAA CR 11 Behir eAAA CR 13 Storm Giant eAAA CR 13 This adventure is designed for four to six level-twelve characters. The group is expected to take a couple short rests, but they should not need to take any long rests. Contains treasure from 1 roll on the challenge 11-16 treasure hoard table in DMG. The inhabitants of Cloudspire Vale have been beset with frigid Storms during the last three months. If the storms last a long time, the villagers will probably not survive. They have determined that the storms are being caused by a storm giant who lives at the story of Stormcatcher Peak. Fearful to confront the giant in themselves, they seek to hire an adventure party to put an end to the threat. Van 'Thir The Tempest, a storm giant, is really responsible for the attack of storms in the town. His anger has been agitated by repeated hunting excursions of the villagers in the spearhead mountains in which many of Van Thir's precious giant goats kill. In response to this offense, the storm giant decided to visit the town with an eternal winter storm until the inhabitants are dead or leave their mountains. Cloudspire okay. A town at the base of the Stormcatcher peak inhabited by Goliats, Dwarves and some humans. Stormcatcher Peak. A high mountain in the head mountains. NPCS van 'Thir The Tempest. Storm storm living at the Summit of Stormcatcher Peak. Bjorn Thunderbeard. A priest of the storm God who tried without a © xito to subvert the winter storms and is not looking for an adventure party to help the people of him. Bjorn is adorned in winter goat skins, he has the sacred symbol of the storm god that hangs from his neck. He has a gray beard with the red touches that are still shown. The random encounters use these meetings if the Hä © Roes try to use more than expected breaks, are in the middle of assaulting a compound and resting a lot, or even in short breaks. 1d4+2 yeti directed by an abominable Yeti 2 Frost Giants in Sledged Slut 1 Remorhaz euq euq acilpxe y solle noc en9Aer es dreabrednuht nrojb)Ala najav y eripdsuolC ed elav le ne samelborp sol eD nahcuse euq sejanosrep sol nehucuse sejanosrep sol euq ed s©Aupsed He believes that the storm giant is rumored who lives at the Summit of Stormcatcher Peak is responsible for the eternal winter storms that affect his people. She asks the characters that go up the mountain and stop the storm giant before Cloudspire is destroyed and becomes a frozen grave for all its inhabitants. Bjorn tells them that if they can stop the storm giant and return the climate to normal, it will give them a medical maul that has been transmitted from priest to priest in his temple. Up The Mountain Van, Thir's den at the Summit of Stormcatcher Peak, and the characters will need to climb the mountain (or use other medical media) to reach it. While traveling down the hillside, he shed free to execute one of the previous random encounters. In addition, on their way for the mountain, they find a Frozen Adventurer hired a few weeks ago by Bjorn. If the bodies are inspected, it is clear that they were simply not prepared for the dangers of the cold climate and the inhabitants of the mountain. They seem to have been very burned and a couple is halfway. (They were attacked by a recession on their way by the mountain). The lair of the storm giant, the Summit of Stormcatcher Peak is divided into two mounting peaks in the shape of a spear. The path that leads to the slope of the mountain leads to the southern spikes. A bridge connects the southern peak with the Pico del Norte, where they go, Thir The Tempest, lives in an old and outdoor temple dedicated to his deity. S1. The mountain path of the mountain path that leads to the slope of the mountain has several hunters of hunters placed along where the villagers will hunt giant goats. The bones of the giant goats cover the sides of the path at regular intervals. S2. Behir Lair, the first cup in the south peak serves as the den of Behir's torque, who are going. Thir, has trained as guardians for his den. There are several stalagmites and stalactites in the cages, and the floor is full of carbonized bones and and of armor, all that remains of adventurous parties that have dared to enter. The frozen corpse of a partially eaten gigantic in which the Behirs are still working on a wall. Boot. Partially buried under the moment of frost covering the floor there is a bag containing three rubies, each with a value of 3000 gp. S3. Goat body This two-camera room serves as the bedrooms of several giant men and goats. The werrees worship Van 'thir and faithfully serve their interests. There are currently five giant goats and three steps in the larger chamber. The werrees are currently in their form of goat, grazing with the giant goats in the hills of hard grass and tree bark scattered by the chamber. Aggressive men keep an orderly treasure hoard in the smaller chamber. In a small stone sanctuary dedicated to Van's thir are marble statuettes carved with powerful giants with sapphires for the eyes. There are five of those statuettes, each with a value of 750 gp. S4. The north peak bridge where the temple is located and most of the bridge is supported by a thick fog that limits the visibility to about twenty feet. The bridge is a massive arch made of stone. At regular intervals, the braziers burned with magical flames that never extinct. Postcards in large and thick chains form rails on each side of the bridge. The massive carambanos hang from the bottom of the bridge. The surface of the bridge is covered with a rim of scarlet that is believed and broken when each person crosses the bridge, filling the air with a strong sound of crunchy. Positioned in the center of the bridge there are two rooster guards and one oni. When they listen to someone who starts crossing the bridge, the Oni becomes invisible and flies about forty feet into the air, preparing an ambush. Yeah, the Oni remains high in the air where the fog hides it from the sight. After throwing cold cone, the oni will shake off the fog, attack twice with hisand then go back to the fog where it can't be seen. The oni has a flight speed of 60 feet. Loot. The oni carries a pair of solid platinum bracelets, each one is worth 1000 pp each. S5. The Temple At the northern peak of the mountain is an ancient temple where Van'Th'ir makes his den. Six massive marble columns form a hexagonal shape and solid ice walls between the columns. Ice walls are decorated with geometric patterns that look like snowflakes. Large giant-sized steps lead to the temple. The interior of the temple is a large open space dominated by a gargantuan stone altar dedicated to the giant deity of Van'Th'ir. Located on the inside of the temple are several large braziers with burning incense. The temple has no roof and is open to the heavens above. Van'Th'ir, a giant of the storm, and his faithful Mount Rimewing, a rooster, are in the temple. Van'Th'ir was communicating with his deity before throwing control time as he does daily to continue the winter storms betting Cloudspire Vale. However, the sound of combat on the bridge probably alerted him to the presence of intruders, and is now preparing to fight with Rimewing. Before the characters can enter the temple, Van'Th'ir and Rimewing take the air and hide in the thick fog. As the characters enter the temple, they will call them, challenging their presence and demanding to know why they have come. If the characters have avoided killing Van'Th'ir miners to this point, they might be convinced to stand up and not attack if the characters promise to convince the villagers of Cloudspire Vale to stop hunting giant goats. However, if the characters have been killing all their followers to this point, Van'Th'ir is outraged and will attack. In combat, Van'Th'ir and the roc will stay at about sixty feetthe party. The storm giant will tear down your lightning when available!
